2. Background Information

The Industrial Development Corporation of South Africa Limited (the IDC) is a self-financing, state-owned national development finance institution which provides financing to entrepreneurs engaged in competitive industries and follows normal company policies and procedures in its operations.

As the IDC shift to hybrid working, employees will need support to remain engaged and productive. However, they are not equipped with the skills to execute a digital transformation strategy and take advantage of the new technologies in the market. It is not always possible to have physical instructor-led training, and Covid has taught us that some training can be rendered successfully virtually. During times of uncertainty and job insecurity such as this, employees are more likely to continue investing in updating their skill sets. Because of these new conditions, new learning needs are emerging, and they are centered around working remotely and support where face-to-face and peer-to-peer learning is not possible.

The Learning and Development (L&D) department is also increasingly under pressure to provide solutions that address the entire ecosystem in addition to the LTSP strategy. Therefore, there is a strong need to adapt fast in the Human Capital Division and L&D specifically, whilst investing in the future today.

- Leading employees through change by driving employee engagement and building a digitally competent and agile workforce.
- Preparing for the future to emerge from the Covid crisis stronger thereby strengthening IDC employee value proposition, building future skills, and leveraging the power of data.
- Empower all line managers to lead their talent with empathy, check-in, and have a data-driven pulse on their teams.

The IDC requires a comprehensive e-Learning platform that encompasses a wide range of skills across various occupational categories and levels within the organization. The platform should include courseware that is specifically tailored to the IDC's needs. Furthermore, the chosen service provider should be able to design and develop customized e-learning content that is specific to the IDC, as well as create a realistic simulation of the workplace environment. This simulation should allow employees to engage in real-life scenarios, make decisions, and learn from the outcomes in a safe and controlled virtual setting.

A suitable service provider is therefore sought to deliver a relevant, competence-based e-Learning platform for the IDC. This learning platform must provide a comprehensive courseware that addresses the full range of skills across different occupational categories and occupational levels within the organization. Additionally, the service provider must clearly articulate outcomes for each course, from on-boarding of staff members to Continuous Development Programme, compliance-related as well as industry recognised courses.

As part of the selection process, the service provider will need to be able to provide an e-Learning platform and courseware that meets the requirements of the dynamic operating environment that IDC operates in.

3. Scope of work/Terms of reference

3.1 The IDC requires reputable institutions with vast knowledge and relevant experience in providing e-Learning platforms containing locally and/ or internationally recognised courseware / learning content, to provide a platform that comprises the following:

- The ability for users to sign up and search for courses that are related to their fields and interests and to start learning immediately.
- Provision for multiple digital devices, such as PCs, laptops, smartphones, tablets, etc. to allow learners to learn anytime and anywhere. It will be advantageous if the training material is downloadable and accessible offline.
- Ability to track learners' engagement and progression through the courseware and provision of appropriate recognition mechanisms for course completion. It will be an added advantage if recognition and credentialing are provided via industry standards such as digital badges (micro credentials).
- Provide the functionality for the IDC to upload custom courseware and custom learning pathways (e.g., the addition of onboarding materials for new employees).
- Ensure that courseware is always up-to-date. It will be an added advantage if the platform has a functionality that allows IDC the ability to create course content on the platform.
- Provide Application Programme Interfaces (APIs) that enable integration into IDC tools/systems, in particular Cornerstone OnDemand.
- The reporting functionality to enable Workplace Skills Plan (WSP), Annual Training Reports (ATR), B-BBEE and Employment Equity submissions, as well as tracking the number of participants with demographic breakdown and costs for 850 IDC employees.

The following courses must be standard in the service provider's offering:

- IFRS Standards
- Anti-Money Laundering (FICA)
- Public Finance Management Act (PFMA)
- Personal Mastery: Insights Profile Optimizations\
- Value Chains: Strategies for Development Finance
- IFRS 9: Financial Instruments Impairments
- Mergers & Acquisitions
- King IV Principles

The following learner levels should be included in all courses to create a learning pathway:

- Introductory level: courses at this level will accommodate beginners in different fields of learning.
- Intermediate level: courses at this level will accommodate learners who have already attended introduction courses or have already acquired skills and knowledge at beginner's level.
- Advance level: courses at this level will accommodate learners who have already attended courses or have already acquired skills and knowledge at intermediate level.

- Provide project plan, eLearning manual, and closure report. Service providers are required to clearly state the methodology approach towards the design, development and provision of the simulation solution in closing the skills gap of the IDC workforce. This should include how the service provider will collaborate with the IDC's Subject Matter Experts in co-creating functional a simulated learning programme, and ongoing collaboration, and outline the deliverables, outcomes as well as impact.

3.3 Service providers are required to clearly state the approach they will use towards the provision of the solution in closing the skills gap of the IDC workforce on a continuous basis, outlining the deliverables, outcomes and impact. Additionally, the bidder should provide training to the 4 (four) system users and 1 (one) IT technician to enable the personnel to provide 1st line support. 4. Project timelines

The appointed service provider should be available to start with the Provision of an off the shelf e-Learning Platform and courseware to the IDC immediately upon awarding of the contract.
